Report of Health Officer

The law requires physicians to report to the health officer all cases of communicable disease. When no physician is in attendance the head of the family must report to the health officer by letter, postal or other means any case in his family which he knows or suspects to be communicable.

For the year 1920 the following diseases have been reported from West Rutland: Diphtheria 2, Influenza 20, measles 77, mumps 1, scarlet fever 30, small-pox 2, typhoid fever 4, meningitis 1.

Feb. 10, 1921—The health officer had examined 562 children in the schools of the town and found 407 defective. There are about 40 still to be examined in the Polish school and the High School students. The defects found are classified as follows: Defective teeth 408, defective throats 95, defective eyes 61, defective ears 3, defective mentally 3, enlarged thyroid 2.

Diseased teeth are the most common defect. The dictum "a diseased tooth is either good enough to be filled or bad enough to be pulled" is true with but few exceptions. Diseased tonsils are associated with diseased teeth too often to be a co-incidence. After the tonsils are infected they too are a source of danger. That infection of one organ is often the cause of general ill health is now known by nearly all. It has been found that other infections like measles, diphtheria and scarlet fever are less prevalent in schools where attention is given to keeping the children normal.

No attempt at treatment has been suggested in pointing out defects as we believe the family physician and dentist can best do this after studying each child.

Common sense attention to the variations from normal is urged upon parents and children. Cleanliness, fresh air and proper food are urged as of prime importance while anything tending to make the child introspective or "neurotic" is carefully avoided.

Attention is called to the fact that no child can be re-admitted to school after being in quarantine unless he brings a notice of release signed by the health officer. Teachers neglecting this are subject to prosecution. No family can be released by any one but the health officer and are subject to prosecution if those in quarantine go out in public without a release. Quarantined families are furnished with an application for release when quarantined and the release is sent as soon as the application is received by the health officer.

The value of the health officer is in proportion to the extent to which you use him and work with him. He welcomes any opportunity to meet any publicly or in private to explain health matters or answer questions.

Respectfully submitted,

BERN D. COLBY, M.D., H. O. Dist. No. 7
Rutland, Vt.
